THE CROSS IS BACK!

After the article in last month's newsletter was picked up by the local press and made front page news, local man Michael Cooper thought he would do something about it. As an employee of Amey who are responsible for the road, he was in an ideal position to do so. He, David Page (also from Maybole) and Drew Fulton (pictured below) discovered that the whole surface had been stripped off the road a couple of years ago and dumped near Minishant. They searched the site and found the cross then came out at six o'clock on Sunday morning to replace it. Definitely above and beyond the call of duty!

Now the site of the old Market Cross, permission for which was given to Maybole in the Burgh Charter of 1516 (but which had to be removed in 1773 due to traffic congestion in the High Street!), can once again be pointed out to all visitors.

WELL DONE AND THANK YOU.

MITCHELL LIBRARY

It has been announced that the Mitchell Library near Charing Cross in Glasgow, a major resource centre for both local and family historians and home of the Glasgow City archives (with a lot of the old Strathclyde archives as well!), is to close for two months in July and August this summer for major refurbishment. The "Mitchell" is the biggest public library in Europe and this major investment is to be applauded. The reason given for choosing the two summer months for the closure is that it is the quietest time of the year. Unfortunately one wonders if the fact that we get the greatest number of foreign visitors trying to trace their own family and local history at the same time of year has been taken in to account!

Remembering Willie

Last year it was decided that the late Willie Connelly, one of our founder members and a much respected member of the original Society committee, should be remembered by placing a seat in the grounds of the castle so that members and visitors would have a comfortable place to sit in peace. The seat is to be formally put in place on Easter Sunday, 27th March at 3.00pm and Father Stephen McGrattan will say a few words of dedication. All members and friends are invited to join us at that time.

They Deserve a Medal Themselves.

A new and valuable resource has recently been made available on the internet by the National Archives. Many records of soldiers who served during the First World War were destroyed by enemy action during WWII. One record that survived was the index of the campaign medals awarded to men who served in the British Army or Royal Flying Corps. The index can be searched free of charge at

www.documentsonline.nationalarchives.gov.uk

by surname, forename, regiment (if known) and time period although with a slightly less common surname excellent results and the regiment of one Ayrshire soldier were recently found using only the surname and first initial of the forename. For a small fee of £3.50 the medal card itself can be downloaded.

As the site of the Commonwealth War Graves Commission at www.cwgc.org only gives details of the 1.7 million personnel who were actually killed during the wars, this is an important additional resource for tracing those who served and survived.

Also available on the same site as the WWI army medals is a record of medals claimed and issued to more than 100,000 Merchant Seamen from 1946 – 2000 giving details of the seaman's name, discharge book number and the medals, ribbons and clasps issued to him, with some entries also listing date and place of birth.
